

Teen, Sex and Technology: Social Media Literacy for Youth Workers

Tuesday, February 28, 9:30 am ~ 1:30 p.m. White Plains
Thursday, March 1, 9:30 am ~ 1:30 p.m. Smithtown

Did you know youth spend more than 7 ½ hours consuming media daily?

Facebook. Twitter. YouTube. Google. “Media is the air that teens breathe.” This 4-hour interactive media literacy workshop trains parents, teachers, community-based organizations, faith-based workers, youth-serving agencies, and others on new media. Eight- to eighteen-year-olds spend more time with media than almost in any other activity—an average of more than 7½ hours each day, seven days a week.

Through small group discussions, interactive activities and video clips, this workshop teaches you to understand the TV shows teens watch, the websites they frequent and other media consumption. Each participant receives a valuable resource kit that equips you to use digital media to your advantage.

Register for this workshop to:

- ✓ Get the latest statistics about teen usage of Facebook, Twitter, YouTube, texting and Smartphone apps.
- ✓ Obtain online resources with up-to-date information about teens’ sexual health
- ✓ Learn media marketing & outreach strategies to engage youth online.
- ✓ Discover how to teach students to be safe online.

This training assists Health, Physical Education, and Family and Consumer Science teachers in meeting NYS Education Standards 1, 2, and 3.
