What are the security limitations in the Capitol Complex?

- To enter any Senate Office, House Office, or the Capitol Building, you must go through security checkpoints. There will be metal detectors, bag searches, and lines. The bag limitation is the size of the metal detectors, but keep in mind that the larger the bag, the higher the likelihood they will be searched. No knives, aerosols, weapons, or bottles are allowed into the buildings. Here is a full list of prohibited items:

Can I bring signs to the event?

- Moderately sized signs are allowed into the Office Buildings as long as they do not have a stick or pole attached. They must be able to fit through the metal detector.

Where is Dirksen Senate Office Building?

- Dirksen Senate Office Building is Northeast of the Capitol building between Constitution Ave and C St at First Street NE. It is located between the Russell Senate Office Building and the Hart Senate Office Building. The closest entrance to the Dirksen Auditorium is the 1st St NE and C St. NE Entrance although any entrance may be used.

How do I travel from office building to office building?

- The Senate Office Buildings are all connected and do not require going outside. The Dirksen and Hart Buildings are connected on every level from the Ground Floor and up. To travel between the Dirksen and Russell Buildings, go to the basement level and follow the tunnels on either side of the Dirksen Cafeteria. To travel from the Senate Offices to the House Offices, you must exit the buildings and walk across the Capitol Complex. The trains connecting the Senate to the Capitol and House are for Staff and Staff-escorted guests only.

How do I get from the Capitol Offices to Union Station?

- Union Station is two blocks north of the Senate Office Buildings. Simply follow Delaware Ave or 1st St. and they will lead through the park to Union Station.

Where can I get lunch?

- There are two large cafeterias in the Capitol Complex. The largest is in the Longworth House Office Building. This is suggested if you are heading to the House side for meetings after the rally. If you are staying on the Senate side after the rally, the Dirksen North Seryery is on the basement level of the Dirksen Senate Office Building.
