January is Cervical Cancer Awareness Month

In honor of Cervical Cancer Awareness Month make an appointment at one of our health centers for your annual pap test. Cervical cancer is the second-most common type of cancer among women worldwide. Two types of the human papillomavirus (HPV), which affects one in four women, are the most common causes of cervical cancer. Pap tests are very important tests for finding abnormal cells on the cervix that are caused by HPV. Click here to learn more about HPV and how to prevent cervical cancer.
