

A Word from Ashley

Ashley Coffield, CEO

We believe in the autonomy of individuals to make informed, un-coerced health care decisions. Choosing a birth control method is complicated; no one method is right for everyone. We have a superb online tool, My Method, which helps women and teens choose the right birth control method for them.

Continuing a pregnancy is also a serious health decision. Families need to make their own difficult, private decisions without interference from government or others who have their own agendas.

PPGMR and Planned Parenthood Middle and East Tennessee have formed Vote No on 1, to educate Tennessee voters about Amendment 1, a change to our constitution that would make it possible for politicians to pass even more restrictions on abortion with no regard for when a woman's health is in danger or she has been the victim of rape or incest. The Vote No on 1 campaign is our top priority this year.

We've hired an experienced community organizer who is building Community Action Teams in West Tennessee, made up of volunteer activists committed to mobilizing friends in support of Planned Parenthood and the Vote No on 1 campaign. With our sister affiliate, we have formed dozens of Community Action Teams across the state.

We recently commissioned a statewide poll that shows voters in Tennessee think that Amendment 1 is flawed and dangerous. They do not want the legislature to pass more restrictions that would ban abortion even in extreme circumstances. Many of your fellow Tennesseans agree that women need as many options as possible when making decisions about reproductive health care.

This is a winnable campaign. Stay tuned to learn how we will win it together.

Donors and Artists Beautify Health Center

Our patients deserve the highest-quality experience of dignity and care when they visit our health center, and that includes surroundings that are inspiring, and even beautiful. This aspiration led to a multi-phased Placemaking Project, and the first phase was a donor-funded collaboration with the Urban Art Commission (UAC) to commission art for the health center lobby, waiting rooms, hallways and exam rooms.

PPGMR requested works of art from Memphis-area artists that reflect the young, urban, positive outlook representative of the people and community we serve, with a distinctive Memphis flair. UAC project manager Brittney Bullock coordinated the project, commissioning a mural artist for the building lobby and individual works of art for the health center interior spaces. selection committee comprised of PPGMR donors, community partners, and staff determined the final collection.

Local artist April Pierce designed the lobby mural. The following artists contributed works for the interior health center spaces: Nathan Black, Alisa Botto, Joseph Boyd, Jenn Brandt, Traci Brothers-McDaniel, Sean Davis, Maria Ferguson, Ron Fondaw, Matt Ivey, Kia Lola, Chip Pankey, Jack Robinson Archive, Monty Shane, and Jermel "Ziggy" Tucker.

The artists and their families, as well as PPGMR supporters and donors, enjoyed an An Artful Space: Works from Greater Memphis, for a Greater Memphis opening reception at the health center on March 20th. If you would like to tour the health center to see the new collection and learn more about our Placemaking Project, please contact Aimee Lewis at alewis@ppgmr.org or 901-725-3051.

We Are Growing!

Six new PPGMR staff members have started this year. Each of our new employees brings unique expertise and skills, and they represent a major investment in the education, health center services and advocacy.

University of Memphis Generation Action

Planned Parenthood's University of Memphis Student group is changing its name from Vox: Voices for Planned Parenthood to Generation Action. The name change is fitting, because these student activists are planning more actions on campus than ever before. They conduct regular outreach events like this Get Yourself Tested table at in the University Center, where they distributed condoms and information about STD testing.

Free Condoms Memphis Update

Free Condoms Memphis, PPGMR's condom distribution program, continues to grow beyond all expectations. The HIV prevention program provides free condoms to more than 60 community distribution sites – including barbershops, nail salons, nightclubs and churches – which offer them free to the public. On the website, FreeCondomsMemphis.org, a site locator helps clients find convenient distribution sites.

The program is especially good at working with community partners and leveraging donations from state and local organizations, like this donation of 100,000 condoms from the Tennessee Department of Health, delivered to our health center on April 3rd. Free Condoms Memphis distributed 103,100 condoms in 2013, and is well on its way to exceeding that for 2014, distributing 63,525 in just the first four months of this year.
